PLENTY OF NERVE

As Benson walked along the busy street he was stopped by a shabby individual. "Excuse me, sir," said he, "but I wonder if you could lend me a quarter?"

Benson was startled and demanded to know why the quarter was needed.

"Haven't you a job?" he demanded.

"No sir," whined the shabby individual. "You see I'm a slate roofer by trade. But I can't work at it because I fell off a roof and lost my nerve."

"Oh, no, you didn't!" said Benson, as he walked on quickly. "Your nerve's all right."

"MY GOLDEN GIRL" IS ONE OF SEASON'S HITS

Orpheum Show So Good It Is Booked For Return in February

When Victor Herbert started "My Golden Girl," his comedy, with music, on its Southern tour, after the completion of a year's run on Broadway, his manager would agree to play in Nashville for one night only.

"Nashville isn't patronizing the costly shows this year," said that gentleman.

Last night was the "one night only" in question.

Notwithstanding that Santa Claus was playing an opposition engagement, a full house greeted "My Golden Girl." The audience was so appreciative of this, one of the three best attractions of the year so far, that the manager of the show begged for a return date immediately.

"We are booked up until February," Harry Anderson, the Orpheum's manager, announced between acts. "You can have half a week then."

So "My Golden Girl" will play at least four more performances here, and those who were unable to get into the theater last night may have the pleasure of hearing the best work which Victor Herbert has written since the days when he produced the grand opera, Ramona.

This show is different from any which has been seen here this season. In many respects it is superior even to that tuneful hit, "The Rainbow Girl," and its comedy is certainly more amusing and far cleaner than that in "Listen Lester."

A clean-cut plot of masterful understanding runs throughout the piece—Arthur Mitchell, a dissatisfied young man, and his wife, Peggy, equally dissatisfied, deciding that they will be divorced immediately, and marry their affinities.

Peggy has been called "My Golden Girl," by Howard Pope, and Arthur has been termed a "Knight of Today" by pretty Helen Randolph. Howard and Helen, by chance, call at the Mitchell home on Long Island just as the lawyers of the married pair arrive to arrange for the divorce.

A moment later a score of friends call to felicitate the Mitchells on their first anniversary and two minutes after that the parents of the couple arrive. From then on there is a laugh a minute, except when one of the dozen principals is singing or dancing. It would be a shame to divulge the ending, as others will see the show in February.

Speaking of girls—the chorus in this piece forms the prettiest picture seen in many a day. The costumes which they wear would have made the Queen of Sheba jealous; their dancing would have taken Solomon's eyes off his eight hundred wives; and their individual and collective beauty last night made many a middle-aged man sigh for the days of his youth, when he called some fair maiden his "golden girl."

There are a half dozen excellent voices in the cast. The best soprano of the season heard at this house (not even barring the Robin Hood production) was sung by pretty Lovetta Sheridan. She has a rich, velvet voice of great volume and range she was heard at her best when singing "In Venice," when Francis Lieb, who played the part of Howard Pope and in "If We Had Met Before."

Carrie Reynolds, as Peggy Mitchell, brought the house down with her solo, "O Night in June," and more than once danced herself into the hearts of her spectators.

The ensemble effects of the chorus were splendid. Well-trained, beautifully gowned, there was not a marring note in their performance.

Harold S. Orr, as the dissatisfied husband, played a straight comedy part pleasingly, but character parts made the big hit of the evening.

Harry Hermesen and Jack Freed, playing the part of shyster lawyers, kept the house in an uproar. Augustus Buell, in the humble role of a butler, was excruciating funny on more than one occasion and could dance a wicked step as well. Jack Dalton, as Clarence Swan, who always was longing for the dream of youth, was excellent.

It goes without saying that Herbert's music is charming, tuneful and "whistly." This show will be worth seeing in February. —Nashville Tennessean.

This will be at the Opera House Thursday February 10.

VEXED PROBLEM TO BE DELAYED

Harding Can Decide Japanese Question—Treaty Not Ready

Washington, Feb. 3.—Settlement of diplomatic problems with Japan, especially as arising from the enactment by the state of California of anti-alien land ownership legislation will be postponed until the Harding administration assumes office, it was indicated today by state department officials.

While no formal announcement on the subject was made by the state department, it was intimated by officials that because of the short lease of life left to the present administration and the long standing character of the problems now in process of solution between the governments, it would be the part of wisdom not to hasten unduly their final adjustment merely for the purpose of concluding a treaty under this administration.

Officials also said that the recommendations submitted to the respective governments by Roland S. Morris, United States ambassador to Japan, and Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador here as a result of their recent informal conversations, directed to a solution of the problems were not to be interpreted as in the nature of an agreement. It might be necessary, they added, for the ambassadors to resume conferences after the two governments had studied the report.

Both Secretary Colby and Under Secretary Davis during the last few days have been engaged in studying the Morris report, but they have not as yet reached the point of taking up the question with President Wilson.

WHOLESALE CANT GET BOOZE PERMITS

Attorney General Makes New Ruling For Government

Washington, Feb. 3.—The authority of the government to issue permits for the withdrawal of liquor from bonded warehouses is limited to manufacturers and wholesale druggists, Attorney General Palmer ruled in an opinion made public today by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams.

Issuance of permits for this disposition of liquor by wholesale also is limited to manufacturers and wholesale druggists, the attorney general ruled.

Commissioner Williams said that while the attorney general's opinion eliminated the wholesale liquor dealer from the right to permits, it was not the intention of the bureau to interfere with the disposition of their present stocks. He declined to say that the regulations would be adopted covering liquor in bonded warehouses. Owned by wholesale druggists, he suggested that it might be possible for the dealers to dispose of their bonded stocks by the transfer of the warehouse certificates to wholesale druggists or manufacturers entitled to permits.

Mr. Palmer's ruling on the question of permits for the sale in wholesale quantities of liquor is limited to alcoholic spirits, which have not been denatured.

Texas led all states in November oil production. It brought in 9,489,000 barrels.

GERMANY BATTLING TO REGAIN SILESIA

London, Jan. 29.—Germany and Poland are battling bitterly to win the plebiscite in Upper Silesia March 15.

By this plebiscite the people will determine whether they will come under German or Polish rule.

Both countries want this territory because of its great coal resources. Germany, which has had to surrender the Saar Basin coal regions to France, for 15 years, says it will mean total ruin if it loses the Silesian coal fields.

Poland claims she must have them to fuel her industries.

Both sides charge unfair campaign methods, intimidation and violence. Though most of the people speak Polish, the territory has been under German rule for 700 years.

Political leaders in Germany talk of violence if the allies award the territory to Poland, Vice versa with Polish leaders.

The Polish legation announces that the Polish general staff is reorganizing a regular army according to military standards. But it denies: That the army is being mobilized in full strength.

That the Poles are concentrating troops on the Estonian, Latvian and Rumanian frontiers;

That there are prospects of renewal of warfare between Poland and Bolshevik Russia.

The legation blames the Germans for the baseless mobilization report, which is to depress Polish currency and credit, to otherwise weaken the country, and to influence the plebiscite.

It reports that five classes of the army have been demobilized and that it now numbers only 300,000 men.

The legation says the Polish high command expects a peace treaty to be signed with the Bolsheviks in February.

In China all the land belongs to the state, and a trifling sum per acre, scarcely altered through long centuries, is paid as rent.

AWAKES FROM 4 WEEKS SLEEP DAY AFTER SHE WAS TO HAVE WED

New York, Feb. 3.—Awakened from a four weeks' sleep one day after she was to have been married, Miss Yetta Lehman, aged 21, today said she felt no ill effects and would be wed in a week or two. Attending physicians said she had not been suffering from sleeping sickness and that they were unable to diagnose the malady.

Fatigued from social duties during the Christmas holidays, Miss Lehman went to sleep January 1, and for many days she lay without moving a muscle and at times was delirious.
